The National Capital.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Mar. 4th.
Dear Southerner:

We reached this place on Saturday and spent that day and Sunday in witnessing the wonders at the National Capital. We will not consume space in describing what has been written up time and again much better than we could do it and things that are familiar to all intelligent newspaper readers.

To be brief Washington is a grand place, but the Capital is grander still. On Monday we visited it for the first time and spent the early morning hours in inspecting its various divisions and viewing the city from its dome. After getting our fill of this, we approached the Senate Chamber, and having sent our card in to Gen. Ransom, were soon courteously received and led into the Chamber where we were introduced to many of the General's senatorial fellows and those who fill the high places in the land. Finding a Northern Republican disposed to talk with us, after conversing on the leading political topics of the day, we asked him the question, what Southern Senator had the most influence in that body? He answered very promptly, "General Ransom without a doubt," and then went on to give us the opinions of leading Senators on his late eloquent and able speech on Southern affairs as follows:

Vice-President Wilson—I fear I have prejudices against ex-Confederate generals, but I could trust that man (Ransom) with any public interest.

Edmunds, of Vermont—The greatest speech that has been delivered in the Senate for ten years.

Bayard, of Delaware—A splendid effort. I am indeed proud of him.

Hamilton, of Maryland—Ransom in the Senate is what Lamar is in the House.

We select these expressions to show how highly our worthy Senator is held in the esteem by both his political friends and foes in the highest legislative tribunal in the country and which give also in our opinion the people of our state just cause to be proud of the man who so ably and honorably represents them. Of his colleague, Mr. Merrimon, we have little to say. He is regarded as a man of respectable ability and has influence, but being indebted to the radical party for the seat which he fills, we leave it to some one else to sound his praises.

We had the pleasure of hearing speeches from many prominent Senators, among them Conkling, Logan, Chandler, Frelinhuysen, Havlin, Morrill, Bayard, Stevenson and others sparring over the Civil Rights bill and like measures.

In the evening we visited the hall of the House of Representatives and were passed in by Col. T. S. Ashe. As soon as we entered our eyes involuntarily sought out Benj. F. Butler. We were not at all astonished at his appearance. We had imagined how he looked. There are some who don't believe in physiognomy, but any man who looks Butler in the face and fails to perceive 'the beast' in every feature, is to be wondered at. And it was not long before his malicious brain had something to growl at the South about. He addressed the Speaker, and pretty soon made a fling at the venerable Judge Poland, of Vermont, about the submission of his Arkansas report. An exciting scene occurred. Butler insinuated that Poland had sold out, whereupon the latter said: Mr. Speaker, I wish the gentleman from Massachusetts to understand that I pronounce him a liar! The two stood glaring at each other for a few moments and Ben opened his mouth and sent something back about as good, but the noise was so great we couldn't catch the words; but Poland did, and shaking his fist at Butler rushed back, "You are a liar, a d—d liar!" This brought down the house and we never wanted to yell half so much in our life. We immediately thought of John Young Brown who sat quietly enjoying the scene—the man who took Junius for his model in rapping Butler over the knuckles and was censured therefor—and wondered whether Judge Poland who is a Northern man and a Republican, had so shocked the House that he would be censured for telling a member the truth to his face although in the billingsgate of a washer-woman. * * *

The whole North Carolina delegation in the House with one or two exceptions stands well with the Democratic side, particularly Maj. Robbins, and will no doubt be very useful in the next Congress.

But we have forgotten Sunday. We attended the Metropolitan Methodist Church. About the time we had reached the main entrance, we heard a boot black whisper to a comrade, "Here comes the President." Of course we stepped to one side. Up dashed the White House equipage in regal splendor and out stepped the President, Mrs. Grant, Mrs. Sartoris, Mrs. Fred. Grant. We followed closely behind and dropping a word in an usher's ear, we were shown to a pew two in front and on the right of the one occupied by His Excellency and attendants. Some celebrated doctor preached, but we didn't take the trouble to even learn his name. We were taking a good look at the White House people and here is our opinion. Grant himself to our surprise was decent in appearance, good looking, but evidently bloated. Mrs. Grant is both squint and cross eyed and the most unprepossessing woman this side of Africa with the exception of a certain individual in Tarboro. We were pleased with Mrs. Sartoris. She seemed unassuming and retiring, modestly but richly dressed, has a sweet, intelligent face, and is very pretty. Mrs. Fred. Grant is also pretty, but we fear she feels and shows her sudden elevation from the daughter of a hotel keeper to a daughter-in-law of a President of the United States, and we imagined she was a little pompous in airing herself during the services. We may do her injustice. All were very respectful during the entire service.

Washington is headquarters for politicians, and the coming President had centered down already to one of six men. On the Republican side Grant, Conkling, of New York, and Speaker Blaine are the trump cards, and the impression is that Conkling will be turned up. On the Democratic side are mentioned Hendricks, of Indiana, Bayard, of Delaware, and Thurman, of Ohio, with the chances decidedly in favor of the first mentioned. And in view of a Convention in North Carolina, a set of judges has been selected with W. N. H. Smith as Chief Justice and Robert Strange and George Howard as Associates from East Carolina. SENIOR.

(The above letter was received too late for insertion last week and a greater portion of it has been stricken out in consequence as the discussions on the Civil Rights Bill, Force Bill and other measures which were noticed have been published some time by the press.)

How Senator Ransom Saved the South from Probable Bankruptcy.

We can cheerfully endorse the following which we append from the Wilmington Star:

"It is always gratifying to record good things of one's friends. It is especially pleasant to be able to record quite a number of good things to the credit of the prominent and responsible public servants of one's own State. Senator Ransom, we learn from a special telegram to the Baltimore Sun, has performed a service for which not only his own people but those of several Southern States will give him their profound and heartfelt thanks. A bill which had passed the Houses of Congress without notice, authorized a writ of mandamus issued by any Circuit Court of the United States against any State officer to remain of full effect, notwithstanding the death or resignation of such officer. The effect of the bill, as was ascertained, would be to compel the payment of all the bogus bonds, State and municipal, issued during the Radical and carpet-bag rule in several of the Southern States, which would bankrupt North Carolina, Georgia, and perhaps some other States. It is believed that the holders of some six millions of bogus railroad bonds issued by the North Carolina Radical authorities inspired this bill, and the common rumor is that General Butler 'worked up' the bill in his ingenious style, by which suspicion as to its true intent was not aroused. The bill had already been enrolled, and was ready for the signatures of the presiding officers, when, through the efforts of General Ransom, it was arrested in the last stage before becoming a law."

Of the many services rendered the people of North Carolina since he took his seat as one of their Senators, this last act of Gen. Ransom is the most conspicuous and distinguished.

The great Confederate naval commander Semmes is the only man whose disabilities the late Congress refused to remove. His limbs were too treacherous to be soon forgotten by men destitute of magnanimity.

Speaking of the Wilmington Civil Rights case and the way it was decided, the Petersburg News says: "Thus we go, and so will be every decision with reference to privileges not specially enumerated in the bill. Finally, on the first test case the United States Supreme Court will knock 'Sumner's legacy to the South' into smithereens, and then we shall hear no more of this infamous bill and its more infamous supporters. Till then our people must possess their souls with patience. We must not let our opposition to this bill be of such a character as to furnish political capital for our adversaries in their dying struggle of 1876." So mote it be, and we think, so will it be.

Convention.
The democratic caucus of the Legislature last week by a two-thirds vote authorized the committee on constitutional reform to report a bill calling a convention and it is thought this committee will submit a bill before adjournment.

Gov. Vance, one of the most influential men in the State, in view of the recent act of Congress has declared himself squarely in favor of a convention.

We have believed from the beginning that our General Assembly would at this session make such a change in our organic law as would satisfy the stern demands which the interests of the people at large make for a constitution better suited to their tastes and habits.

Although the delay has been discouraging in a measure, we yet believe the Convention will be called at an early day.

All hail that auspicious day.

The rumored differences between England and Russia are revived by the reports of the Englishtman, a trustworthy newspaper in India, that all the troops in that country are ordered to be ready for active service, the surmise being that they are to be used in Europe and not in Asia. War was repeatedly threatened—first, on account of Russia's declaration as to the neutrality of the Black Sea in 1870, and later because of Khivan complications; but England has not been in a hurry to fight and it is likely that something of greater importance than the waning influence at Constantinople must occur before we shall see English armies in the field. —N. Y. Herald.

President Grant's kitchen organ at Washington tells the following truth, the first from that quarter for a whole year:

THE VERDICT—The parting words in the newspapers of the country, judging from those we have already received, addressed to the Forty-third Congress, are not at all complimentary. The straight-forward Republican journals, as well as the independent Democratic press, join in unmeasured denunciation of its many omissions, and the general lack of consistent policy which characterized its proceedings. No precedent in Congress has ever succeeded in giving such general dissatisfaction, both to party friends and political opponents. The truth is, however, that the Opposition really has cause to rejoice. —National Republican.

Congress was the meanest one we ever had, and the whole country excrete it; but its bad deeds were never half so many as the Republican's monstrous falsehoods.

The following seems to be a fair estimate of the state of public sentiment as it now stands at Washington concerning political matters:

- 1st. That Grant stock, to use a common expression, is at a heavy discount, and has declined rapidly within the past two months.
- 2d. That a third term nomination is no longer among the probabilities, nor a third term election among the possibilities.
- 3d. That prejudice against the South has rapidly lost strength of late, and a strong reaction in favor of just treatment of southern question has set in and borne down all opposition.
- 4th. And as a result of these things, that the moderate republicans are full of confidence and consider that in them lies the only hope of their party.

The Norfolk Virginian, we think, is entirely correct in this summing up of the case.

Of the civil rights bill members of Congress acknowledge that it may make as much trouble in the north as in the south, and that it may, if shrewdly used, become a powerful weapon in democratic hands to stir up disgust against the republicans during next year's canvass, because the law can be adroitly used to annoy country tavern keepers, and thus to raise a prejudice against the party which passed it. It is believed, that in a great many cases it will be evaded, and that it is more likely to be a dead letter than an enforceable or useful law.

"The renomination of President Grant," says Harper's last Weekly "would dissolve the republican party." That is an honest confession for a republican paper to make. But we think the party is dissolved now.

At the closing hours of Congress the bill admitting the territory of Colorado as a State, was passed by a vote of 164 to 76—more than the necessary two-thirds. The other bill for admitting New Mexico as a State was defeated by a vote of 154 to 84—less than two-thirds. The admission of Colorado makes the number of the States in the Union 38, and the number of Senators 76. We hope the two new Senators will be better ones than many who have come from that direction in late years.

The Cincinnati Enquirer is aggressive. It says: "The next National Democratic Convention will probably be held in St. Louis. A majority of the executive committee is said to favor that point. The conventions, with one exception, have been held east of the Alleghenies since 1856. The East has had enough of a good thing. The West will take the convention and the candidate this time." We hope it will get what it claims.

The lady boarders at the Arlington Hotel, Washington, got into the bed in which Kalakaua slept, that they could say they had lain in "a King's bed." No Southern lady was concerned in this—Exchange.

The negro King has gone home, now, and if those lady (?) boarders were favorably impressed with the order which his majesty left, they can try Pinchback's bed and ascertain if there is any difference between a King and a U. S. Senator.

The Rocky Mount Mail heretofore a relentless opponent in its last number declared unreservedly for a Convention. We hope the Wilson Advance and Roanoke News will do likewise. Then the press of Eastern Carolina, we believe, will be a unit for Convention.

Plymouth church was "glutted" with people on Sunday last while Beecher was "nest-hiding" in the pulpit. Judge Neilson's court in Brooklyn is also "glutted" six days in the week.

The New York Tribune asks:—"Won't somebody please say a kind word of the defunct Congress?" This unbroken stream of denunciation and disgust is very monotonous reading."

The inevitable Pinchback is up again before the new Senate with his claims to a seat in that body. Won't that body learn that his claims, like his name, are base?

The appropriation for the Cape Fear River was increased from $100,000 to $200,000. Sensible and just. A few more such will give Wilmington the harbor she wants. She is again placed under obligations to General Ransom.

There can be no reasonable doubt that Andy Johnson is now the most noted man in the United States among the masses, but the democrats must remember that they can run a candidate of their own for the next Presidency of the United States.

Andy Johnson was welcomed to his seat in the Senate with bouquets. He left Washington before with curses. May he merit the first as much as he did the last.

"Everybody's Vegetable Cathartic Pills."
BOSTON, VA., Dec. 1st, 1873. Gentlemen—I have been a great sufferer for several years with Liver Complaint and general debility, and at times troubled with immense pain in the regions of my liver. I have had the attendance of the best medical men to no avail, but without any permanent relief. I was at last advised to try "Everybody's Pills," and I feel no hesitation in saying that one bottle did me more good than all the other Medicine I had taken before. I now feel entirely relieved, the pain having left me. I have a good appetite, and what I eat agrees with me. I have no hesitation in saying that I owe my good health, and perhaps my life, to the use of "Everybody's Pills." Very respectfully, E. A. DAVES. March 12th, 1875.
